Primarily oriented to mainstreaming gender within Ministries of Trade and related bodies, the production and entrepreneurial sectors, and business associations. Examines the barriers to equality between women and men in the trade sector, including: institutional issues; constitutional and legal aspects of commercial operations; property rights, licensing and company registration; access to credit and financing; access to training. Offers recommendations on how to promote gender equality in each of these areas; gives examples of good practice; and provides tools for governments and the private sector on reviewing trade policy, institutional arrangements including staffing, and monitoring the impact of gender mainstreaming.
